

Dr. Stoeber Makes Good on a DREAM

After ten years of pediatric practice in the Clackamas area with Oregon Pediatrics, Dr. Troy Stoeber, a board certified pediatrician, has opened a new practice in the Oregon City Pediatric Building.

"I feel blessed to be able to make this dream come true," says Dr. Stoeber, who will begin clinical services April 1st, 2013.

After buying the former practice of Dr. Daren Emery, he will be sharing space with Drs. Clarke, Nielsen, and Resk, whom are already established at that location. With some aspects of the new practice requiring unique innovation, Dr. Stoeber has decided to mark his progress as a "pioneer." The innovation begins with a website dedicated to the pioneering spirit reflected in his approach to pediatric healthcare. "It's been a long process, and a ton of work," says Dr. Stoeber, "but the rewards have been great."

The Oregon City practice became available following the sudden, unexpected passing of Dr. Daren Emery. "It's an honor to take over the practice of such a respected man and clinician," says Dr. Stoeber. "He will be missed by all who knew him. I look forward to carrying on his tradition of excellent care."

"It's been a long process, and a ton of work, but the rewards have been great."

Plans are currently underway to contract with all major insurance carriers in order to allow children access to Dr. Stoeber's care. Lifewise, Familycare, United Healthcare, and Providence Health Plans are all currently approved for scheduling.

"I look forward to serving the children of Oregon City and surrounding communities," says Dr. Stoeber.
